The market is expected to be further consolidated by a few Biggies like Samsung, Nokia and Micromax. The report states that the smartphone market has tripled in the last two years and witnessed double digit growth in 2011 and 2012. With the volume of the smartphone market expected to increase from 550 million in 2011 to 1.4 billion by end 2015, this increase can be attributed to both an expanding middle class as well as an increasing disposable income. Contrary to what might be expected, Nokia is in the second place. Although it managed to register a modest growth in the fourth quarter of 2012, its sales are expected to be flat in 2013. According to the report, Samsung is expected to grow at the rate of 17%, the fastest growth rate among all the competitors. Interestingly, Samsung is expected to continue growing as brand preference of the Indian consumers increases to more than 40% from the current 30% level. Likewise the American smartphone giant Apple, which was at the bottom of the list, had also managed to register a growth of 19% in 2012.FAMILY : MEMBERS OF SOLAR ELEMENTS WAVES :FLAME ELLIPTICS SOLAR SYMMETRY Aristocats and Astragons ETHER : AIR COLD SPHERE Ether will be cold, dark and still, and we feel it in the center of our being.
