The input is something like this, where 'just look here' is the specific text node I want to find. It's kind of a long text node that actually describes my problem. just look here more stuff I want to select and store just the text inside the first tag, which is just look here. So far, I have this, which selects the first occurrence of just look here //root/div/p[text()='just look here']/following-sibling::text() But I'm lost on how to select just the first tag when my search query is 'just look here'. I've managed to find a way to get it working when my search query is 'look here', and it's this //root/div/p[2]/following-sibling::text() My problem is that I want it to work with any search query I throw at it. A: I think this XPath expression should work for you: //root/div/p[.='just look here']/preceding-sibling::p[1]/text() It returns the text of the first p following a p element that contains the text 'just look here'
